2 Day International Association of Facilitators Preconference

COURSE DESCRIPTION:

Collaborative relationships require cultural competency—skillfully guiding group and self to authentic relationships across differences that acknowledge and address power imbalances. In this 2-day deeply interactive workshop participants will learn a framework for alliance building, social change and emotional healing that deepens trust and safety. Modeling collaborative co-facilitation, you will benefit from the knowledge and guidance of three facilitator-trainers. Built around a unique listening practice and framework that clearly explains the dynamics of institutional power, you will join others on a life-changing journey to explore the effects of oppression, while fostering understanding and collaboration to enhance your practice as a facilitator.
